surrender

Love and Tears, surrender is the last chapter of my « Love » theme and my most personal scent.

4 chapters, 4 olfactive declarations:

Prelude to love, invitation - the innocent invitation of an Iris freshened by citruses

Love, don't be shy - the devouring passion of an Orange blossom powdered with glazed sugar

Beyond love, prohibited - the forbidden pleasure of a narcotic Tuberose

And now Love and Tears, surrender - the unconditional surrender to love of a Mediterranean Jasmine.

Only the Jasmine flower, with its endless spectrum of facets – citrus, green, floral and animalistic – was able to express the profusion of emotions that I wanted to communicate with this scent: the beginning of love marked with excitement, the fear of the unknown and, ultimately, the surrender to love!

To express this complexity of emotions, I did not want a Jasmine that would smell too composed or too adorned, but rather exaggerated within its two most dramatic facets: erotic and sacred.

Olfactive Description

Love and Tears, surrender is a soliflore of Jasmine, composed exclusively with the Absolute Jasmine from India, a Jasmine with strong orange blossom undertones.

Love and Tears, surrender is a scent composed like a figurative painting with the Jasmine flower as the core subject...with all its facets...with all its contrasts...with its disharmony of eroticism and sacred.

Sacred facet:

Bergamot from Italy, Petit Grain from Paraguay, Cypress from France

Erotic facet:

Jasmine from India, Orange Blossom from Spain, Ylang Ylang from Madagascar, Ciste from France
