

*« A quatre heures du matin, l'été,
Le sommeil d'amour dure encore.
Sous les bosquets l'aube s'évapore
L'odeur du soir fêté.*

...Vers le soleil des Hespérides...»

Rimbaud

*"At four in the morning in summer, love's sleep slumbers on.
Beneath the bowers, dawn stirs the scent of evening celebrations."
...Near the Hesperidean sun..."*

September 2008:
Launch of the 7th scent of "L'Oeuvre Noire" By Kilian
New Fragrance for Men and Women

Embracing the theme of "Love and its prohibitions", Prelude to Love: Invitation, the seventh fragrance from "L'Oeuvre Noire" is an olfactory memory of a first encounter...

As a splash of crimson blossoms across the cheeks and hearts beat wildly, a refined yet bold bouquet of the noblest citrus soothes and refreshes mounting sensations of exhilaration. The sweetness of bergamot, the delicacy of Seville orange and the brightness of lemon swirl into a spiral of seduction, an invitation to love.

Intense ginger and pepper pierce the heart of the fragrance, imbued with neroli and orange blossom, disclosing a subtle undercurrent of intent. From this emerges the crowning note, the irresistible Iris of Florence whose majesty sweeps away all inhibitions.

Perfumer: Calice Becker
